1 Introduction

1.1 Scope

This policy provides the NSW Police Force corporate standards for preparing a range of non-operational documents including issue papers, instructions, stationery, external publications and the use of the NSW Police Force insignia.

It is a guide to document organisation, design and writing style, as well as publication management and security.

This policy supersedes all previous publications with similar content.

All employees¹ are required to comply with this policy.

1.2 Why we need standards

Thousands of documents are produced by the NSW Police Force every year. It's important they're professional, consistent in style and have a corporate look.

If you need to write a report or produce a brochure for the NSW Police Force, use this booklet as a guide. It sets the minimum acceptable standard for documents and is a reference for writing style, punctuation and grammar.

This booklet reflects the Commonwealth Style Manual, which sets the standard for Australian Government writing, the Macquarie Dictionary of Australian English, general readability standard and in some cases, NSW Police Force preferred style.

¹ Employees: persons engaged to assist the NSW Police Force to undertake its responsibilities in accordance with the Police Act 1990 including Police Officers, Administrative Officers, Ministerial employees, Volunteers in Policing and temporary employees

2 How to present an issue paper

2.1 What is an issue paper

Official internal correspondence and non-operational communication should be written in the standard report style known as an issue paper. They should be as short as possible and generally no more than two pages. Use dot points to help keep it brief.

Supporting documents can be attached as tabs (e.g. "see Attachment A"). Identify the document title and/or RMS number, and briefly identify the relevant section that supports the argument.

Each report should be recorded on the Records Management System (RMS), our internal document and records management software. RMS numbers should be displayed on the top right corner of the report. Typing or handwriting the RMS number is appropriate in all cases.

TIP: press Ctrl R to right align the RMS number in a Word document

2.2 What colour paper

The NSW Police Force uses coloured paper to indicate the executive level the report is intended for.

White To your commander via your chain of command

Green To the commander or manager of another command via your chain of command (Colour code on PDF: H73 S103 L197 or Word: R197 G229 B190)

Yellow To a member of the Commissioner's Executive Team (CET) via your chain of command (Colour code on Adobe PDF: H34 S237 L166 or Word: R254 G232 B99)

Pink To the Minister's office via your chain of command (Colour code on Adobe PDF: H229 S228 L221 or Word: R254 G215 B226)

To add the correct colour code to your paper:

Word:

- 1. Go to Design Tab and look for Page colour
- 2. Select More colours / Custom
- 3. Insert the numbers

Adobe:

- Click Edit PDF
- 2. Select more (beside Watermark)
- 3. Select Background then Add
- 4. Select Source / From colour / Other colour
- 5. Insert numbers into Custom
- 6. Save your custom colours for next time

2.3 What it should look like

The presentation of your issue paper will be the same, no matter what colour paper is used. See page 8 for an example of what it should look like.

Each should contain:

Issue: A brief statement of the reason for the submission.

Background: A summary, history and current position of the issue.

Comment: Outline proposed changes and recommendations, with justifications.

Recommendation: A brief statement requesting approval for the action being proposed.

Protective markings are required in all headers and footers. See section 2.5 for details.

2.4 Who should approve it

At the end of your issue paper, list (using numbers) the positions in your chain of command beginning with your immediate supervisor.

Include each commander's title and position, but not their name. This allows for the movement of commanders and managers into different positions.

Always sign off your issue paper with your rank, name, title and the date in either long or short format.

The issue paper will be sent to each officer in turn, and each movement is to be recorded on RMS.

Provide enough space between each commander in the list to allow for comment – at least three hard returns (hit the enter button [←] three times).

Each commander should make their comment below their title in the list and sign off with their rank, name and date.

2.5 Confidentiality and information security classification

On 11 January 2021, the NSW Police Force adopted the updated Commonwealth Protective Security Policy Framework².

All documents you produce for your work must be marked with a protective marking. The minimum protective marking is OFFICIAL for all work-related documents.

- SECRET restricted to commands with access to the Australian Secret Network (ASNET) system and an approved (Class B) safe
- PROTECTED
- OFFICIAL: Sensitive
- OFFICIAL

² See the Attorney-General's Department Security Classification Reforms D/2024/18236

UNOFFICIAL

Sometimes additional restrictions apply and an information management marker (IMM) should be used. There are three IMMs to choose from. If the information is subject to:

- legal professional privilege, use OFFICIAL: Sensitive Legal privilege.
- one or more legislative secrecy provisions, use OFFICIAL: Sensitive Legislative secrecy.
- provisions in the Privacy Act 1988, use OFFICIAL: Sensitive Personal privacy.

You will need to have the protective marking and IMM (if required) in the header and footer for each page.

OFFICIAL ISSUE: Contamination of leather search gloves belonging to Cst *, registered number , and request for a replacement pair. BACKGROUND: I was issued my current leather search gloves on *. On the evening of the  of , *, I attended an incident that involved the arrest of a violent offender who was bleeding heavily from a laceration to his arm. I was required to use weaponless control tactics and had my leather search gloves on at the time. As a result of this incident my gloves were contaminated with the offender's blood. E----relates. COMMENT: My search gloves are contaminated with blood and cannot be cleaned. Those gloves are to be destroyed due to health and safety concerns. I request that a new pair be issued to me for my protection. RECOMMENDATION: That I be issued a new pair of leather search gloves. [SIGN HERE] Constable  PAC // 1. 3 Preparing external correspondence

3.1 Preparing letters and emails

All external correspondence should be prepared in a respectful and professional manner, with the appropriate address line, greeting and subject. Corporate letterhead is required for external letters and a corporate signature is required on all emails. Generate your email signature on the intranet using Google Chrome.

Document classification markings are not required on external letters unless the information in the document or enclosed with the document contains sensitive or classified material.

External correspondence should read like it's written by a person, not a government organisation. If possible, negative replies should be conciliatory and leave an opening for review.

Never apologise for a government policy. However, accept responsibility for legitimate mistakes and express regret or promise to investigate. If more contact is suggested, include a contact name and number if appropriate.

4 Preparing policy and SOPs

Policy and standard operating procedures (SOPs) set out the NSW Police Force position on a specific issue and enables consistency in decision making and service delivery.

It's important that best practice is followed when developing, implementing and evaluating these documents.

When drafting such a document, you must comply with the NSW Police Force Procedure for Corporate Policy Documents.

For more information, see the Policy intranet page (scroll to the bottom).

4.1 Changing the NSW Police Force Handbook

Police Instructions are published in Police Monthly and announce changes to the NSW Police Force Handbook as well as reinforce current SOPs, policy and guidelines.

To protect the integrity of police and evidentiary procedure, changes to the NSW Police Force Handbook must be actioned across all commands at the same time, which is why they're published in the Gazette section of Police Monthly.

A list of current Police Instructions is published by the Police Library online.

To request changes to the Police Handbook, email the Governance Risk & Compliance team at Performance & Program Support Command at #policehandbook.

Publishing Police Instructions requires the approval of the relevant corporate sponsor or commander at Assistant Commissioner rank via an issue paper.

5 Design

5.1 Corporate stationery

Letters, business cards, with compliment slips and fax covering sheets are intended for external correspondence and should be printed using the current approved corporate stationery.

Printed stationery can be requested through your command's administrative team, or you can download the letterhead from the intranet.

5.2 Corporate branding

All documents that use the NSW Police Force logo, insignia or chequered band must comply with the Corporate Branding Policy & Standards. No other police logo can be used externally unless approved as per the policy.

Documents intended for public dissemination should be co-branded with the NSW Government Waratah logo.

5.3 Corporate fonts

Readability is the goal. The default setting in Microsoft Word is appropriate for most corporate documents including issue papers.

Avoid distractions such as coloured boxes and coloured text. Use font size 11pt as the smallest option.

5.4 Templates

Templates for corporate PowerPoint presentations and professionally designed document covers are available for all staff to download. Find them on the intranet by searching for corporate templates.

Cover design templates allow you to change the words and the photo to suit your document.

If you choose to design your own cover, they must include:

- the document title
- the correct NSW Police Force insignia, which includes the words NSW Police Force
- documents intended for public dissemination should be co-branded with the NSW Government Waratah logo

Design 01 with NSWPF Logo: internal screen/presentation use.

Design 01 with Co-branded Logo: external screen/presentation use.

Design 02 with NSWPF Logo: internal screen/presentation use.

Design 02 with Co-branded Logo: external screen/presentation use.

5.5 Text spacing

Single spaces are appropriate between sentences (hit the space bar once).

Leave one line between paragraphs (hit the enter key twice).

Do not indent the first line in a paragraph.

5.6 Headers and footers

Headers and footers are to be used for document classifications.

Footers should also include the document title and page numbers. Use the same font used in the document or a little smaller.

6 Document management

6.1 Copyright

Copyright in Australia does not need to be registered but exists as soon as you create your document. It's best practice and is required by NSW Police Force that you include copyright notices on your documents to remind third parties of copyright protection in your document.

Include either of these copyright notices on your document and keep a dated copy for your records:

- © Crown in right of NSW through NSW Police Force [year]
- © This work is copyright. Apart from any use permitted under the Copyright Act 1968 (Commonwealth), no part may be reproduced, stored or transmitted in any form, or by any process, without the prior written approval of the Commissioner of Police [year]

TIP: To insert a copyright symbol type "(c)" and then press the spacebar.

6.2 International book numbers

All NSW Police Force documents that are distributed to members of the public must have an international standard book number (ISBN).

These numbers are allocated by the Corporate Design Team in Public Affairs Branch. To request an ISBN number, send an email to #Corpdesign with the following details:

- title/working title
- subject
- command responsible
- contact officer
- contact number
- date project started
- estimated completion date, and
- related RMS numbers.

Two copies of each document are then sent to the National and the State Library, as well as to the University of Sydney Library and the Parliamentary Library (eight in total). One copy should also be sent to the NSW Police Force Library at the Police Academy in Goulburn.

Pamphlets, leaflets, charts or flyers do not require an ISBN, but will still need to be deposited with all four libraries.

7 Content

7.1 Our name is the NSW Police Force

According to the Police Act 1990, our organisation's name is the NSW Police Force – not the New South Wales Police Force.

Avoid using the NSWPF abbreviation in external documents.

7.2 Plain language

Write all non-operational documents in plain language. Use everyday words and get to the point quickly. Avoid complicated writing styles, jargon, gender specific or ambiguous terms.

Instead of	Use
Assist	Help

He/she or his/her They or their
Male and female Man and woman

Numerous Several Persons People
Policewoman Police
Practicable Practical

7.3 Inclusive language

Bear in mind the diversity of your audience. Diversity includes professional skills, working style, location and life experiences, as well as cultural background and ethnicity, age, gender, gender identity, disability, sexual orientation, religious beliefs, language and education. Refer to the Inclusion & Diversity Strategy 2020-2023, or email the Inclusion & Diversity Team at #hrdiversity for a comprehensive language guide.

7.4 Describing people

Great care must be taken when describing people. Refer to the most recent version of the Media Policy for a complete guide to using physical and ethnicity based descriptors. Ethnicity based descriptors can be used in the pre-arrest phase, when combined with a physical description. They must not be used once a person has been apprehended.

A person's nationality has no bearing on their appearance and is irrelevant in a physical description.

7.5 Using capital letters

Only use capital letters to begin a sentence or indicate a proper noun (eg. a person's name). If in doubt, lowercase is the default. Avoid using upper case in business writing.

Position titles and ranks are not capitalised unless they are immediately followed by a person's name, for example:

Superintendent John Smith, Commander ABC Police Area Command...

An assistant commissioner will be appointed operations commander...

Region commanders are appointed at the rank of assistant commissioner...

Commanders, crime managers and duty officers are to ensure compliance with...

TIP: If you're referring to more than one officer, then the term you're using is a common noun and should not be capitalised.

When spelt out, acronyms are lowercase: person of interest (POI), multicultural community liaison officer (MCLO), officer in charge (OIC).

This applies to all NSW Police Force documents except legal documents.

7.6 Abbreviations and acronyms

Acronyms form a large part of our organisation's vocabulary. Find a list of corporate abbreviations at the back of this document.

When using acronyms, spell the word in full with the acronym in brackets in the first instance. Avoid using full stops when abbreviating.

7.7 Rank abbreviations

Ch Supt	Chief Superintendent	L/Snr Cst	Leading Senior Constable
Supt	Superintendent	Snr Cst	Senior Constable
Ch Insp	Chief Inspector	Cst	Constable
Insp	Inspector	Prb Cst	Probationary Constable
Snr Sgt	Senior Sergeant	Det	Detective (precedes rank)
Sgt	Sergeant	A/	Acting (precedes rank and position title)

Using rank abbreviations is appropriate in most instances except for Assistant Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner and Commissioner. Spell out the full rank in formal documents such as award certificates, external documents and in the signature block on external correspondence.

7.8 Letters after names

Postnominals are letters placed after a person's name to indicate a position, qualification, accreditation, office or honour.

Many awards carry an entitlement for recipients to use letters after their name, such as the Bravery Medal (BM), the Australian Police Medal (APM) and the Commissioner's Valour Award (VA). These should be used in all formal documents.

Neither the Governor-General nor the Governor of New South Wales use full stops or commas when presenting their postnominals:

His Excellency General the Honourable David Hurley AC DSC (Retd) Her Excellency the Honourable Margaret Beazley AC QC

7.9 Dates

Long or short date styles are appropriate in business writing.

- Long style should be day, month, year: 24 January 2024
- Short date should be written: 24/01/2024

When stipulating a period, either of these is appropriate so long as your statement makes sense:

- Provided service between 1990 and 2000
- Provided service from 1990 to 2000

7.10 Numbers and decimals

In business writing, numbers are written in words from zero to nine (one, two, three) and in figures from 10 onwards. No brackets are necessary.

The conference was attended by 20 officers from nine locations. One million, two million, 10 million

Always spell out any numbers at the beginning of a sentence or paragraph. Use figures throughout for sporting results, weights and measures.

Include a comma for numbers with five or more figures

For decimals, add zero at the beginning

Remove zeros at the end unless statistically relevant

10,000

0.2 (not .2)

0.5 (not 0.50)

8 Punctuation

8.1 Apostrophes (')

The confusing its and it's:

It's is a contraction – the apostrophe replaces the missing letter (like shouldn't, isn't, '97)

Its is a possession – something belongs to something (like my or your)

Where to put it

One person = The officer's roster
A group = The officers' roster

When not to use it

Always leave it out when using acronyms.

DVOs not DVO's 20s not 20's MCLOs not MCLO's FAQs not FAQ's

8.2 Commas (,)

Do not overuse commas. If your sentence reads well without them, leave them out.

Use a comma to separate components of a list: policies, documents, brochures and posters.

8.3 Semicolons (;)

Use a semicolon to separate lists that already contain commas, for example:

Guests included the Deputy Commissioner Corporate Services; Executive Director, Public Affairs Branch; and Commander, Traffic & Highway Patrol Command.

8.4 Ampersands (&)

Use & in command names, document titles and acronyms to avoid confusion in sentences.

Counter Terrorism & Special Tactics Command (CT&SC)

Australian Customs & Quarantine Control

8.5 Bullet points

Select bullets from the Home menu at the top of your Word document.

Full stop or not

There are generally three types of bullets:

- 1. those with an introductory sentence followed by dot points no need for commas or semi colons. Just use a single full stop only at the last bullet (which is the end of the sentence)
- 2. those that are complete sentences use a full stop at the end of each bullet (which is the end of each sentence)
- 3. simple lists these are not sentences so no full stops or commas at all.

8.6 Avoid brackets

The officers not the officer(s)
Six not six (6)
16 not sixteen (16)

8.7 Quote marks

Only use quotation marks when you're directly quoting someone, which is very rarely done in business writing. Avoid using quotes to draw attention to a word eg: Operation 'Basalt'.

8.8 Hyphens

Avoid hyphens whenever the meaning is clear without them.

Statewide not state-wide
Counter terrorism
Coordinator not co-ordinator
Cooperate not co-operate
Antisocial not state-wide not counter-terrorism not co-ordinator
not co-operate

8.9 Graphics

Graphics including photos, charts, graphs and illustrations may be used in any document. Always credit the source for any taken from the web.
